Village Reflection Name _____

Village has many pieces. You can spend a lot of time on your house or your business or your government or your job or your education. You can also spend time with your friends. In that way, it's a lot like life. Sometimes, it's tempting to just focus on our appraisal number when we think about how Village "went" but there is so much more to the game (and life) than that. This reflection sheet will help you assess the Game of Village as a whole and not just as a number. It's important and should be done carefully.

A Village Life Bar Graph

These are many of the elements of Village. A full bar would represent 100% of your energy that you put in during the game. Don't worry if they don't all add up to 100 in the end…it's just meant to give you a sense of how you prioritized things.

Daily Tasks (writing checks, bank balance work, filling out forms)

Creative Projects (writing, acting, inventing, journalism, books)

Government (laws, town meeting, talking about laws, serving in government…)

Job (Store/bank/woodshop job or working for someone)

Business (Your own)

Education (Peep University)

House

On a scale of 1-10, how well do you feel you used your time? 1 would be “I just hung out with my friends most of the time and didn’t really do a lot” 10 would be “I worked in a focused manner at all times”. A 10 might not be ideal – Village is about connecting, too (although you can do that when you find friends that work hard along with you.)

If you are a fifth grader, what did you learn that you think will be important to remember as you grow up?
